FACULTY OF HUMANITIES

The Faculty of Humanities is committed to providing the highest quality education and consulting services, together with conducting applied research of national and international distinction to meet the needs of languages, literature, music, and the performing arts.

The faculty emphasizes enrichment and dissemination of local wisdom encompassing regional, national, and ASEAN collections of knowledge. Our specialties are language programs of ASEAN, including Burmese, Khmer (Cambodian), Bahasa Indonesian, Laotian, and Vietnamese.

To be recognized, native speakers and qualified staff are recruited to facilitate quality teaching. Moreover, as for program relevance and currency, collaborative educational programs with international partners are developed and offered, especially mutual exchange opportunities, emphasizing cultural diversities and international perspectives.

The faculty consistently performs well in winning competitive awards and publications by both students and staff at regional, national, and international levels.

Four master's degree programs are offered, namely, (1) Folklore, (2) Thai Language, (3) Linguistics, and (4) English. The faculty takes pride in being the first of its kind in postgraduate study of Folklore.
