MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Thanks to our strategic plan, we have never been clearer about the path we will follow to recruit and renew tomorrow's most talented faculty; to educate the most deserving and diverse undergraduate, graduate, and professional students from Thailand and abroad; to set the standard for internationalization and hybridization in higher education; and to bring our expertise to the greater society locally, nationally, and globally.

My conceptual framework in driving the university forward comprises four cornerstones: H-PIN

H – Hybridization. As part of our commitment to creating a diverse campus community, NU is poised for infinite models of educational deliveries and multidisciplinary fields of study covering a profusion of knowledge with faculty members trained from recognized institutions from around the globe. Such diversities are prerequisites for the diverse needs of this century which will, in turn, propel speedy repercussions of further developments.

P – Partnership. A second distinctive cornerstone of Naresuan University is our commitment to cooperation with the private sector and various industries in educational dissemination, research and development, and a multitude of academic services. Possible business investments are encouraged; consulting services are offered as start-ups for advancement in research innovations and technological discoveries. We are proud of this commitment as intellectual capital.

I – Internationalization. To guarantee an internationalized education for our students, we encourage all faculty members to use English as a medium of instruction. At present we have MOUs with universities in eighteen countries and fifty-five international experts on campus.

N – Networking. As a third aspect is our long-standing outward research, we are focusing a great deal of effort and attention on creating academic networks both at home and abroad, especially, in faculty and student exchanges, research endeavors, and academic data sharing. Going forward, no institution of higher learning can stand alone. Networking is mandatory for sharing knowledge to successfully cope with the rapidly changing world.

I invite you to join us, as a prospective student, parent, or friend.

With best regards,
